The Honorable Kamala D. Harris
Vice President of the United States
The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW Washington, DC 20500

Dear President Biden and Vice President Harris:

The undersigned organizations thank you for your commitment and leadership to act swiftly to tackle the COVID-19 pandemic and to jump-start our economy. We share your vision of building a durable caregiving system as a core pillar of Build Back Better and fully endorse your plan to create over one million high quality jobs by investing $450 billion in Medicaid home and community based services (HCBS). This long overdue investment will make it possible for people with disabilities and older adults to receive long-term services and support in their homes and communities, build a robust workforce, and reduce financial burden and time pressures on unpaid family caregivers, allowing many to return to work, including the significant numbers of women, especially women of color, who have been pushed out of the workforce due to caregiving challenges in the pandemic.

Our nation faced a home and community-based services crisis even before the pandemic. A patchwork of underfunded Medicaid programs, the financing of which privileges institutional care over HCBS, has forced far too many aging adults and people with disabilities to forgo the services they need or to rely on family or friends for unpaid care and support. Older adults of color and people of color with disabilities have faced even more structural barriers in accessing housing and other services they need largely due to systemic racism. The direct care workforce, such as home care workers who provide personal care services to older adults and people with disabilities so they can live at home, is a critical part of the HCBS infrastructure and is primarily made up of Black women, other women of color, and immigrants. Structural inequities of racism and sexism, among others have relegated too many home care and other direct care workers to low-wage jobs with few employment benefits. Due to the disaggregated nature of their work, especially for those providing in-home services, and the limits of labor and employment laws, these workers have historically faced challenges in their ability to form unions and lacked a strong voice in decisions that affect them--and, they are often isolated and unsupported in their work. Undocumented direct care workers who work in the large gray market are especially vulnerable and lack even basic labor protections. Moreover, poor job quality compounded by inadequate Medicaid funding and rate setting that does not account for necessary labor costs to sustain good care jobs, creates high rates of worker turnover and chronic worker shortages across the country. This also means people with disabilities and older adults go without needed services.

The COVID-19 pandemic has only exacerbated the situation. As infection rates continue to remain high and the economic fallout of the pandemic further challenges people's ability to afford basic necessities, older adults and people with disabilities face even more difficulties accessing essential supports with no guarantee of the services they need. Many direct care workers have been going to work without personal protective equipment, paid sick time or leave, or other workplace protections. And undocumented care workers have been carved out of accessing desperately needed COVID relief.

A significant body of research indicates that the long overdue investment in Medicaid's HCBS will help American families, workers, and our economy at large.<sup>1</sup> The COVID-19 pandemic has made this investment more urgent than ever -- immediate action is necessary for our economy and the health and safety of those who need services, the workers who support them, and their families. The investment of $450 billion is a necessary first step towards enabling all people with disabilities and older adults the opportunity to live independently and achieve self-sufficiency in their homes and communities, to create more than one million jobs and transform those direct care jobs, including home care jobs, into good, family-sustaining, union jobs that pay at least $15 an hour, and to ease the burden on unpaid family caregivers.

In building our HCBS system to become durable and our economy at large to be resilient and equitable, we urge you to work with Congress to ensure that your upcoming jobs and economic recovery package includes the meaningful investment of $450 billion HCBS desperately needs. This will ensure that the expansion of home and community-based services is making a real difference in the lives of people with disabilities and aging adults and transforms direct care jobs -- one of the fastest growing sectors in our economy -- into good, family-sustaining jobs that pay at least $15 an hour with the ability to join a union. Lastly, we urge you to include a path to citizenship for essential immigrant workers in the upcoming jobs and economic recovery package. As a key part of the essential workforce, these care workers have provided critical services before and during the pandemic, risking their lives and that of their families. Providing a path to citizenship will guarantee essential care workers protections and a real shot at economic security and opportunity.

We stand ready to partner with the administration and Congress to build back our economy to be vibrant, resilient and equitable.
